Open House

July 27th At Camp

Donors to the State FFA-FFA Camp Development Fund were special guests at Covington, Ga., July 27 at an "open house" of this camp facilities.

Nearly 700 attended the afternoon's program honoring donors. Camp Development Committee members and outstanding Georgians who had contributed to vocational education in the United States.

Dr. M. D. Mobley, Executive Secretary of the American Vocational Association of Washington, D. C., told how the Camp was begun 23 years ago. Dr. Mobley, then State Director of Vocational Education in Georgia, was one of the men responsible for the camp purchase and development.

About three years ago a group of businessmen in Georgia got together with staff members of the State Department of Education and set up a Camp Development Committee. This committee, headed by W. R. Bowdoin, Vice President, Trust Company of Georgia, as Chairman, J. E. Fain, Colonial States, Inc., E. S. Papp, President, Southeastern Fair, Executive, Washington; George W. Baxstrom, President, First National Bank of Waycross and B. E. Allen, Assistant Manager, Woodlawn Division, Union Bank-Camp Paper Corporation, Savannah, Co-Chairman; J. A. Duggan, Vice President, Trust Company of Georgia; Treasurer, and Albert Morris, State Department of Education, Executive Director, as their goal.

A broader plan, hearing about 150 names of people and firms contributing $100 or more to the camp fund was unveiled by Future Farmer and Future Homemaker presidents, Bernard Haldean and Jo Evelyn Whitfield.

J. E. Fain who now serves as Chairman of the Camp Development Committee was Master of ceremonies of the open-house program and appearing with him were Dr. Claude Purcell, State Superintendent of Schools, Dr. M. D. Collins, State Superintendent of School Emeritus, and J. P. Nix, State Director of Vocational Education.

Two cottages built in memory of and appreciation for four outstanding Georgians were dedicated during the afternoon. These cottages bear the names of the late U. S. Senator Hoke Smith and the late Congressman Dudley M. Hughes, the late Senator Walter F. George and U. S. Congressman Braxton Dean. These men were co-authors of act expanding vocational education. The two cottages will be known as the Smith-Hughes Cottages and the George-Dean Cottages.

Braxton Dean, the only one of the four who is living, was hand for the dedication ceremony, and families of all four of the men were present.

Since the Camp Development drive was begun, there have been twelve cottages built to honor outstanding Georgians. The 25th acre camp consists of an educational farm operation, 14 frame cottages besides the 12 new stone ones, an educational building, dining hall, infirmary, classroom building, amphitheater and swimming lake.

Most young lady knows how to improve her looks.

Tobacco Sales Below Last Year

Sales on the floors of the Statesboro tobacco warehouses for the seventeen selling days through Friday, August 19, were over three million pounds less than in the same period in 1959.

The market upset during the opening days when the "blue tag law" was in effect and the harvesting conditions due to a later planting season than normal was reflected in the loss. Although an injunction was granted in Georgia nearly a half million hot meals are served in 1775 school lunchrooms daily during the 180-day school year.

Lindsey Johnson, who was converted the fullback slot from end in an effort to add power and punch to the Blue Devils' running attack, heads the list of eight lettermen for Coach Ernest Teel's forces.

Teel, who calls Johnson "the best college prospect we've got," says he has been pleased with the hefty linebuster's performance during practice. "He moves pretty good for a big boy."

"We've got a pretty good first team, but our reserve strength is our biggest problem," he says.

With Johnson in the lineup at fullback—he's the heaviest gridder in the starting unit—the Blue Devils' back field will be a little beefier.

Peanut Harvest Is Under Way

(By Roy Powell, County Agent)

Peanut harvesting is well under way, and many of you are probably about ready to dry peanuts. In this last stage of harvest, there are certain do's and don'ts to follow for maintaining quality peanuts.

Peanuts should be artificially dried to an average moisture content of 8 1/2 percent. Air temperature for drying should not exceed 100 degrees F. Drying peanuts too rapidly and at temperature exceeding 100 degrees F. may adversely affect flavor of peanut when processed, make them subject to leaching when shelled, and reduce their germination.

A 205-pound student turned full-back who has been named Statesboro's grid hopes for 1960.

Lindsey Johnson, who was converted the fullback slot from end in an effort to add power and punch to the Blue Devils' running attack, heads the list of eight lettermen for Coach Ernest Teel's forces.

Teel, who calls Johnson "the best college prospect we've got," says he has been pleased with the hefty linebuster's performance during practice. "He moves pretty good for a big boy."

"We've got a pretty good first team, but our reserve strength is our biggest problem," he says.

With Johnson in the lineup at fullback—he's the heaviest gridder in the starting unit—the Blue Devils' back field will be a little beefier.

Peanut Harvest Is Under Way

(By Roy Powell, County Agent)

Peanut harvesting is well under way, and many of you are probably about ready to dry peanuts. In this last stage of harvest, there are certain do's and don'ts to follow for maintaining quality peanuts.

Peanuts should be artificially dried to an average moisture content of 8 1/2 percent. Air temperature for drying should not exceed 100 degrees F. Drying peanuts too rapidly and at temperature exceeding 100 degrees F. may adversely affect flavor of peanut when processed, make them subject to leaching when shelled, and reduce their germination.
